AGE-FRIENDLY SULLIVAN
Resource Listing of Local Tradespeople
As of Saturday, October 12, 2024

Age-Friendly Sullivan is seeking additional tradespeople to add to our Resource list — please contact Misty Gleason, our Community Connector, with additions and corrections. We will issue an updated version on the first of every month, and post a downloadable version to our webpage for your convenience: https://sullivanmaine.org/age-friendly-sullivan/

This is not a "recommendation" list, only a resource listing.

When seeking tradespeople for your projects, it's crucial to conduct thorough background checks and request references. Do they have required licenses and insurance? A reputable tradesperson should be willing to provide testimonials from past clients, showcasing their work quality, reliability, and professionalism. By reaching out to these references, you can gain valuable insights into their experience, communication style, and how they handle challenges. This proactive approach not only helps ensure you're hiring someone trustworthy but also sets the stage for a successful working relationship. Always take the time to vet your options—it's an investment in peace of mind for your project!

Ask smart questions. When you talk with friends, neighbors and coworkers about contractors, be sure to ask the difficult questions: What part of the project didn't go as planned? Delays and budget changes are typical, but did the remodeler explain them honestly as soon as they cropped up? Did they give you excuses? Or did they constructively discuss options?

Find out who'll actually do the work. Will the person you hired be on the job? Who are the subcontractors that will get used, and do they have required licenses and insurance? Ask a potential remodeler if they uses the same subcontractors on every job, and are they sure they aren't bogged down with backlogs.

If you need financial assistance, go to the last page to check out supportive resources available to homeowners in Sullivan.
